Biography

Born and raised in Ingham North Queensland, Daniel dove into the creative industry from a young age - learning to play 4 musical instruments from age 10 and creating his first video by the age of 16. After completing high school, he went on to study a Creative Arts diploma at James Cook University in Townsville.

After university, Daniel moved back to Ingham to start his own business, DM Creative Media, where he produced local videos and got involved with Adam Thompson from 90s rock band, Chocolate Starfish. Daniel worked with Adam creating music and videos for his touring workshop called MusoMagic. This evolved to the creation of a television series called Outback Tracks hosted by Mitch Tambo.

In 2015, Daniel moved his business to Melbourne and began working with Santo Cilauro from Working Dog Productions as a camera operator and editor for such shows as Russell Coight's All Aussie Adventures, Santo, Sam & Ed's Total Football and Utopia.

His latest project saw him travel to Dubai, UAE to create content for Expo 2020 with one of his videos being showed at the White House. Daniel continues to travel all over Australia and overseas creating visual content for promotional marketing, music videos, documentaries and television shows.
